

Research Priorities for Surf Science and Surfing Resource Management

Collaborative Workshop

Australasian Coasts & Ports Conference
Monday April 11

1400-1500 AWST, 1600-1700 AEST, 1800-1900 NZT [Online]

Aotearoa New Zealand Association for Surfing Research (ANZASR) aims to facilitate progress in the disciplines of surf science and surfing resource management through collaboration. For more about ANZASR, please visit www.anzasr.org

This workshop will introduce and invite participation in a project that is aimed at identifying “Research Priorities for Surf Science and Surfing Resource Management”. A project outcome is to produce a multi-authored publication based on case studies that identifies and characterises current research needs and priorities from an Australasian standpoint. You can join the workshop as a case study contributor (see below) or alternatively just tune into the discussion as an interested person. This is an ongoing project for 2022, so case studies contributed at any time are also encouraged.

About the project

ANZASR will facilitate the compilation of cases over 2022 through a combination of workshops and online discussions. With Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand being world leaders in Surf Science and Surfing Resource Management, the Australasian Coast and Ports conference provides the perfect launch pad for this project. Feel welcome to forward this invitation to others who may be interested. All contributed material will be compiled into a database that will be readily shared. Themes from the contributed cases will be analysed and classified and contributors invited to participate in this process will be listed as co-authors of the publication.

Contribute to the project

We are looking for case studies that exemplify more or more tangible research needs, which are identified in the template (see below). The details required at this stage are brief (but can be expanded on later). Cases studies will be accepted so long as they exemplify new research needs (i.e., not already identified in an existing contribution). Therefore, join the collaboration early if you're interested in participating as an author. Cases that exemplify more specific research needs are better. To contribute a Case Study, please download a Word version of the simple template from here, complete it, and send it to info@anzasr.org

Coasts & Ports workshop format

- Introductions
- Case study presentations (2-3 minutes per case)
- Group discussion on cases
- Conclusions and action items

AOTEAROA NEW ZEALAND ASSOCIATION
FOR SURFING RESEARCH

Research Priorities for Surf Science and Surfing Resource Management

CASE STUDY TEMPLATE

Your details

Name:

Email:

Research needs this exemplifies [describe briefly]

Details of the case [be as brief as possible, include links to supporting material]

Will you be attending the Coasts & Ports workshop? Y | N

Please save this document with a new file name then forward your case study to: info@anzasr.org

Thanks for participating!